1 Task

Suppose you are part of a product design team building a new note-taking app. To inform your design decisions, you need to evaluate existing note-taking platforms and analyze how they support the user journey from creating and organizing notes to searching, editing, and syncing across devices. Conduct a competitive audit by following the given steps.

1.1 Step 1: Outline the goals

A comparative analysis of the user experience in note creation and management across various note-taking applications. (Sometimes it is necessary to break down the goal or specify a list of features that align with the goal.)

1.2 Step 2: Create a spreadsheet to compile a list of your direct and indirect competitors

Generally enlist 5-10 competitors including direct and indirect competitors.

Competitors	URL of the website	Purpose of the sites
Direct Competitors

Indirect Competitors

1.3 Step 3: Create a comparison chart of the competitor's features

1.4 Step 4: Research each company and analyze the findings

Explore each platform thoroughly and document your observations. Take relevant screenshots and detailed notes on key features, user flows, and interface design. Identify themes (if any), as well as each competitor's strengths and weaknesses. Organize your findings clearly so you can refer to them during your analysis.

1.5 Step 5: Compile and summarize your findings in a report

Organize all the information gathered in the previous steps into a well-structured report. Use visual elements such as screenshots, tables, charts, or annotated images to enhance clarity and make your findings more engaging and easy to understand.

2 Submission

Submit your final report summarizing the competitive audit. The report should include a link to your Google Sheet (set to viewer mode) containing the tables. Also include your team information.
